1. Purpose and Principles

Nexora Technologies expects every person acting on its behalf to work with integrity, professionalism and respect. This policy sets baseline behavioral expectations across offices, customer sites, remote work and company-sponsored events.

Core principles: Act honestly. Treat people fairly. Protect company and customer information. Take ownership. Speak up early when something may be wrong.

- Follow applicable laws, regulations, contractual obligations and company procedures.
- Make decisions based on legitimate business reasons and document material decisions when required.
- Use company resources responsibly and avoid conduct that could damage trust with customers, colleagues or partners.

2. Professional Conduct

2.1 Communication and collaboration

- Communicate clearly, professionally and without personal attacks, threats or deliberate humiliation.
- Respect working agreements, meeting norms, response-time expectations and documented ownership.
- Raise disagreements through evidence, direct discussion and established escalation channels.

2.2 Records and representations

- Do not knowingly falsify timesheets, expense claims, customer records, technical reports, security evidence or other business records.
- Represent qualifications, project status and delivery commitments accurately.

2.3 Use of artificial intelligence tools

- Use approved AI tools in accordance with security and data-classification requirements.
- Do not paste restricted customer data, credentials, source code or confidential information into an unapproved AI service.

- Review AI-generated content for accuracy, licensing concerns and security issues before using it in production or external communications.

3. Respectful Workplace

Nexora is committed to a workplace where people can work without harassment, discrimination, intimidation or retaliation for raising a concern in good faith.

- Do not engage in unwelcome sexual conduct, bullying, discriminatory remarks, stalking or targeted intimidation.
- Do not retaliate against a person who reports a concern, participates in an investigation or asks for support.
- Keep sensitive workplace matters limited to people who need the information to address the issue.

3.1 Accessibility and inclusion

- Support reasonable workplace accommodations through the People & Culture process.
- Make team communications and collaboration practices usable for colleagues with different needs and working styles.

4. Conflicts of Interest

A conflict may arise when personal interests could influence, or appear to influence, a business decision.

- Disclose material personal, financial or family interests that intersect with your role or purchasing authority.
- Do not participate in a hiring, vendor or contract decision involving a close relative or a business in which you have a significant financial interest unless approved through the conflict review process.
- Do not use company opportunities, information or relationships for personal gain without written authorization.

5. Confidentiality and Company Property

- Protect company, customer and partner information according to its classification and contractual requirements.
- Return company devices, badges, files and other assets when requested or when your engagement ends.
- Do not copy, remove or retain confidential materials outside approved systems for convenience or personal use.
- Report suspected loss, unauthorized access or accidental disclosure promptly through the security process.

6. Gifts, Hospitality and Anti-Bribery

Business courtesies must never be used to improperly influence a decision or create an obligation.

- Do not offer, request or accept cash, cash equivalents or hidden personal benefits in connection with company business.
- Follow local laws and customer procurement rules even when they are stricter than this policy.
- Record material gifts or hospitality through the company disclosure process when thresholds or approval rules apply.

7. Reporting Concerns

Employees may raise concerns through their manager, People & Culture, Legal, Information Security, the ethics reporting channel or another designated company contact.

- Provide factual information, relevant evidence and the dates or systems involved when possible.
- Good-faith reporting is encouraged even when the concern later proves unfounded.
- Do not conduct your own investigation by accessing another person's files or systems without authorization.

8. Manager Responsibilities

- Model the standards in this policy and address issues early.
- Escalate credible reports of harassment, retaliation, fraud, security incidents or material conflicts of interest.
- Apply expectations consistently and document material performance or conduct decisions.
- Do not discourage employees from using formal reporting channels.

9. Violations and Corrective Action

Violations may result in coaching, access restrictions, formal disciplinary action, contract consequences or termination, subject to applicable law and company process.

- Nexora may conduct a fair review of reported concerns and may involve Legal, People & Culture, Security or external specialists when appropriate.
- Investigations will be handled on a need-to-know basis, while preserving relevant evidence and procedural fairness.
